

UC DAVIS WIRELESS NETWORK - Overview

The campus wireless network is comprised of an ARUBA Networks wireless system that utilizes dedicated wireless access point controllers to manage the channels and power output of the deployed wireless access points. Some of the advantages to such a system include the coordinated update of deployed network equipment, automatic back-fill coverage by surrounding APs when an access point malfunctions, and various analytical and statistical reports.

